The Context

Man is a social animal and half of the human beings are women. We are closely associated with the society. There are so many social problems prevalent in the society such as child labour, dowry, female foeticide, domestic violence etc. To try to remove these problems, one has to come forward. There are a number of people working in these fields. However, women who work for the welfare of society are appreciated by our College by conferring on them the 'Darpan Puraskar' in appreciation of their contribution. The College runs this activity from the last 22 years. 'Darpan Puraskar' is conferred to those women who are actively working in the fields of social, educational and in uplifting the weaker sections of the society. Our late President, Bharat Bhushan Shri Raosaheb Jamkar decided to confer on the 'Darpan Puraskar' in the memory of his wife, Late Sow Kamaltai Jamkar to the women who are working for the welfare of the society. Our College is purely Women's College. Promoting women for education, this College was established in June, 1983. Women are generally neglected by the society from longer periods that is why our late President had decided to bring women in social and educational streams and to achieve and complete the main purpose of the College. We confer this award on behalf of the College since last 22 years. This award took a dive from local to international in this last 22 years.

The Practice

The Institution has formed a separate committee entitled as the 'Darpan Puraskar Selection Committee'. The members of the committee take efforts to identify and finalize the name of the woman who is actively working in the field of social work. The committee collects the whole information of her and prepares a report on her overall social contributions. After discussion, on the individual work, her contribution to the society, the committee finalizes the name for 'Darpan Puraskar'. After that, the committee declares the name. After declaration, the College organizes programme for awarding the Puraskar. The College invites all the people from the society to attend the programme. The nature of the Puraskar is shawl, bouquet, cash prize of Rs. 11000/-, sripthal (coconut), momento, Letter of Honour along with T.A and D.A.
